AN EASTERN TALE.

A king once summoned in three sons, and thus addressed the anxious ones: "Go forth, my sons, through all the earth And search for articles of worth; Then he who brings the choicest thing, Shall in my stead be crowned as king."

In one year's time again they meet.
And kneel before the sovereign's feet:
And as with gracious outstretched hand,
He welcomed home the youthful band,
He natural eagerness expressed,
To see the objects of their quest.
The first such lustrous pearls displays,
That every tongue is loud in praise.
That it we snow-flakes on their way
Compared to them are dull and gray.
The next a diamond more pure.
And larger than the Koh-i-noor,
That shone with such a brilliant light,
The sunbeams, shamed, withdrew from sight.

"Twas hard to choose between the two,
The monarch knew not what to do.
The third is standing caimly there;
Now, with a half triumphant air
Now with a ha

OBITUARY.

With what painful reluctance de ve admit to our hearts that a friend has left our familiar circle for purer and more endearing associations How suddenly do we mingle thoughts of life and death as we contrast the joyous past with the solemn present! Yes we have lost a friend. Mournful, yet hopeful, of future reunion, we say to our hearts we have lost a friend. Miss Lulie Bryan, daughter of Mr. T. S. Bryan, after years of suffering, departed this life on Saturday, the fourth day of May, 1889, at her father's residence in Hopkinsrille. She leaves a devoted father, a daughter and sister Lulie was an example worthy of imitation; with a heart alive to every human sympathy, with generous impulses, she was loved and esteemed by all who knew her, and it is with truth that we are allowed to say that those who knew her best loved her most. Home was the center of her joys and the principal field of her exertions, but her kindness was not limited to these narrow boundaries. She was one to whom you could go in the hour of would not call thee back from that bright world where now thou art an angel, for thee the turmoil and cares of this world are over forever. Many bands are folded over thy pulselers breast, while thy spirit has wended its dight and soared to realms of heavenly light. I need not say how she died, for it is enough to know that she lived a christian. The God who was here in life, disarmed death of its terrors. In the triumph of faith, she reposed on her Savior, confident that all would be well. Fare thee well, we will miss you J. H. R. Hopkinsville, Kv. May 6, 1889.

TO-DAY IN NAZARETH. The Site of Joseph's Carpester-Shop and Other Historical Points.

One of the best views of the city is to be had from the campanile of the Church of the Annunciation. In the distance is the brow of the hill to which Jesus was led by the enraged multitude who attempted to throw him. Harris, Westley Hampton, A. R. Harrison, Georgiana Hall, Mollie rom it. A modern house in the foreground brings to mind the time who hey uncovered a roof and let down the bed whereon the sick of the palsy lay. This must be very much the same kind of house as that historical one of Capernaum. There is the peculiar roof, and there are the outside stairs leading to the roof. The Eastern house-holder makes his roof serve for more than a protection from the weather. It is the plazza, the quiet place of the dweller, and sometimes it becomes his summer residence, * As a rule it is not very heavy or very Rafters are thrown across from wall to wall, say a yard apart; then the whole space is covered with twigs such as we saw the women selling in the market-place. On these the slender limbs of trees are thrown and thickly coated with mortar. Lastly, a thick spread of earth is thrown on, rolled to a level, and oftentimes sown with grass-seed. Thus by care many of the roofs become as smooth and soft as a machine-mown lawn. They may be easily broken up and any thing low-ered inside from above. By some such process the four beavers of the poor palsied man managed to enlist the at-tention of the Great Physician in behalf of their friend. It is not hard to understand it all when viewing such a house as this one at Nazareth. It would not be difficult for four men to carry a lame friend in a hammock by the outer stairway up to the roof, and, breaking through, let him down into the apartment or court below. Not far from this same house, in a narrow street, is a little chapel erected upon the site of Joseph's carpenter-shop. Over the altar is a pict-ure representing Mary and Joseph instructing Jesus, and finding that He knew more than they. Another paint-ing represents the lad Jesus assisting His father at work. It contains no necessories of the earpenter's shop, but there are enough of them in the shops close by. The web-saw, the glue-pot, the plane, and the hammer are the principal tools used in such shops, all without the modern improvements. Yet whatever the Palestine carpenter duces is from the fragrant cedars of Lebanon or from the eccentrically knotted and gnaried olive-wood. The

Greenrod's habitation is really nuseum of natural curiosities, showing that, though a hermit, his time, so far from being wasted solitarily and in deep thought, as most hermits' time is supposed to be passed has been improved, and that the generations to come are likely to derive some benefit from his partial renunciation of the

"It is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day," said the late Dr. J. G. Holland in Scribner's Magazine, "are more suc-cessful than many physicians, and most of them were first discovered or most of them were first discovered or used in actual practice. When however, any shrewd person knowing their virtue and foresceing their popularity, secures and advertises them, in the opinion of the bigoted, all virtue went out of them." Failure of syesight, fickle appetite, headache, extreme wakefuluess, frequent desire to urimate, especially at night, gradual failure of strength and dropsical swellings,—these are symptoms gradual faiture of strength and drop-sical swellings,—these are symptoms of kidney disease. If you neglect the avmptoms you will eventually have Bright's Disease. Warner's Safe Cure is the only specific which has ever been discovered for this disease The late Dr. Dio Lewis, over his own signature said: "If I found myself the victim of serious kidney trouble, I would use Warner's Safe Cure."
